

The frontend look of the Prediction operation, whereby the modus operandi of our project is depicted. The user will get to see this part only, and get the output as per their needs.

This is how the backend of the operation looks like to the developer and operator. The debug node shows the output values being projected at the frontend on the web application.

